

2552. Zeitschrift für celtische Philologie 52 (2001)
Niemeyer
2753. Hartmann (Hans): Was ist ‘Wahrheit’ (2)?: ein Vergleich französischer, keltischer, indischer, iranischer und griechischer Vorstellungen von der Verwirklichung der Wahrheit; eine kulturgeschichtliche Analyse. Teil I.
In ZCP 52 (2001) pp. 1–101.
Expands a previous article in ZCP 49-50 (1997), pp. 287-310. Studies in particular the representation of the prince in Irish wisdom literature and the concept of fír flathemon. Continued in ZCP 53 (2003), pp. 1-101.
2754. Aldhouse-Green (Miranda): Pagan Celtic iconography and the concept of sacral kingship.
In ZCP 52 (2001) pp. 102–117.
Argues in favour of a direct connection between early European iconography and mythic episodes and characters from early Irish literature, focusing on the Irish goddess of sovereignty.
2755. Kazansky (Nikolai N.): PIE **megh-*.
In ZCP 52 (2001) pp. 118–120.
Discusses the etymology of OIr. mos-, mó.
2756. Falileyev (Alexander): Celto-Slavica II.
In ZCP 52 (2001) pp. 121–124.
Discusses the etymology of OIr. grend, and suggests possible Slavic cognates.
2757. Blažek (Václav): Celtic-Anatolian isoglosses.
In ZCP 52 (2001) pp. 125–128.
1. Old Irish airne ‘stone’: Anatolian **pér*, obl. **parn<sup>o</sup>* ‘house’; 2. Celtic **lāti-* ‘warrior, hero’: Anatolian **latti-* ‘tribal troop(s)’.
2758. Blažek (Václav): Balor: ‘the blind-eyed’?
In ZCP 52 (2001) pp. 129–133.
Identifies OIr. Balor (< **b<sup>h</sup>ol-Hok<sup>w</sup>lo-* ‘blind(ing) eyed’) with Óðinn’s epithet ON bileygr ‘lame-eyed’.
2759. Schmidt (Karl Horst): Die altirischen Glossen als sprachgeschichtliches Dokument.
In ZCP 52 (2001) pp. 137–153.
Describes and analyses the linguistic material used by R. THURNEYSSEN as source for Handbuch des Altirischen (1909) and the revised Grammar of Old Irish (1946).
2760. Busse (Peter): Die 3. Sg. Prät. im Mittelkymrischen: ein Wechsel im Paradigme.
In ZCP 52 (2001) pp. 154–199.
Contains a discussion of the history of the Insular Celtic preterital formations.