

JEFFERIES (HENRY ALAN)

5129. Jefferies (Henry A.): The visions of Mac Conglinne and their authors.
In StH 29 (1995–1997), pp. 7–30.
Argues, through an analysis of the extant recensions, that Aislinge Meic Conglinne may have been originally composed by an Ulster clerical scholar, and that it was subsequently reworked by scribes at a Cork monastery during the first half of the 12th century.
14102. Jefferies (Henry A.), Dillon (Charles) (ed.): Tyrone: history and society; interdisciplinary essays on the history of an Irish county / editors: Charles DILLON and Henry A. JEFFERIES.
H&S, 14. Dublin: Geography Publications, 2000. xxxiv + 853 pp.
7406. Jefferies (Henry A.): Erenaghs and termonlands: another early seventeenth-century account.
In SAM 19/1 (2002), pp. 55–58.
Extract of a letter in English (1609) by archbishop William Daniell, entitled De herenachis et Termon lands and containing a discussion of the terms termonn, coarb and airchinnech. From MS TCD E 3. 16, f. 78v.