

3405. Ó Corráin (Donnchadh): Creating the past: the early Irish genealogical tradition.

In Peritia 12 (1998), pp. 177–208.

Argues that the early Irish genealogies were produced and preserved by clerical scholars who adopted biblical genealogical models, and emphasises their written character, derived from Christian Latin scholarship, over the pagan and oral.

Classifications:

- L 4.1: Genealogy: General, regional