In Ulidia 1 (1994), pp. 201–205.

Attempts to verify the hypothesis that Old and Middle Irish had a Stage IV colour system (according to Brent BERLIN and Paul KAY's theory of colour universals, 1969) with two sets of non-basic colour terms (i.e. a set of saturated and unsaturated colours, and a second set with semantically limited colour terms) through an examination of evidence gathered from Táin bó Cúailnge recensions I and II.
