

609. Zeitschrift für celtische Philologie 48 (1996)
Niemeyer
- Rev. by*
Caoimhín BREATNACH, in Éigse 33 (2002), pp. 264-265.
Pierre-Yves LAMBERT, in ÉtC 34 (1998-2000), pp. 361-362.
610. Hughes (A. J.): Some aspects of the salmon in Gaelic tradition past and present: 1. The metaphorical use of salmon in medieval Gaelic bardic poetry.
In ZCP 48 (1996), pp. 17-22.
Discusses the metaphorical use of éigne, eó, maighre, bradán in conjunction with proper names denoting water features to allude to chieftains.
3769. Hughes (A. J.): Some aspects of the salmon in Gaelic tradition past and present: 2. On identifying salmon in the Vita Tripartita of St. Patrick and elsewhere.
In ZCP 48 (1996), pp. 22-28.
ad Vita Tripartita, 146.7-14 (as ed. by W. STOKES, 1887 [Best<sup>1</sup>, p. 240]), where fishermen are said to be able to distinguish salmon by river.
611. Shields (Kenneth, Jr.): Old Irish lín 'numerus': another Indo-European/Near Eastern connection?
In ZCP 48 (1996), pp. 287-290.
Argues that the semantic shift of OIr. lín from 'full' to 'number' is due to the preservation of a borrowed Near-Eastern cultural concept as an archaic semantic feature of the Proto-Indo-European root **plē*.
2742. Edel (Doris): In memoriam Prof. Dr. Maartje Draak.
In ZCP 48 (1996), pp. 296-297. Draak (Maartje) (hon.)